Medical clinics may ease Regina hospital pressure

CBC News Posted: Jan 20, 2012 6:46 PM CST | Last Updated: Jan 20, 2012 7:30 PM CST

Two medical clinics are being proposed for sites not far from Regina's hospitals, developments which could ease some of the overcrowding issues in the facilities.

Richard Jankowski, from Avison Young Realty, told CBC News Friday that his firm is representing two developers that are planning medical facilities near the Pasqua and General hospitals.

The one near the Pasqua is slated to be complete this fall and would be on a lot that was once a bowling alley. Some possible tenants are general practice doctors, specialists and a pharmacy.

The other, near the General, is still in the early stages of development, but could be open in the fall of 2013. That property has an apartment building which the owner says needs too many repairs to maintain.

Jankowski said talks are underway with the city of Regina about zoning requirements.
